Introduction

When embedding movie files into your HTML documents, using the embed tag, you'll need to specify to the screen reader what that element is, using the noembed element. The rule states, "All embed elements have an associated noembed element that contains a text equivalent to the embed element." The error reads, "embed element missing noembed element." To correct the error add a noembed element within the embed element. See figures 1 and 2 below:

Be sure to enclose descriptive text, HTML, or other information within the <noembed> </noembed> tag to keep it accessible for screen readers. See Figure 2.
